2. Novelty

D1 describes the L letter-shaped seals, overlapping to each other, and connected in the cylinder circumference direction. The L letter-shaped seals can slide into the fixed body, and receive the press power in the radius direction by the spring.
 The content of Claim 1 is not therefore novel.

3. Inventive step

D2 describes the seal, attached a seal material to a groove. The groove is made on the contact side.

D1 and D2 belong to the common technological field that seal of scratch move Side. Therefore it is obvious for a person skilled in the art to use, in the seal of D1, the fixed structure of the seal material by groove, is already known from D2.

The content of Claim 2 and 8 is not therefore inventive.

D3 describes the seal, fastens a cylinder by the spring arranged in the circumference direction of the seal ring.

D4 describes the seals, connected in the cylinder circumference direction. The seal of the bottom side is kept in the strain condition by a weight.

It is obvious for a person skilled in the art to use, in the seal of D1, the structure giving seals the press power, is already known from D3, D4.

The content of Claim 3 and 10 is not therefore inventive.

Supplemental Box

(To be used when the space in any of the preceding boxes is not sufficient)

Continuation of: V

D5 and D6 describes the seals, overlapping to each other, the side of radius direction and the side of circumference direction crossing, and the side of circumference direction touching each other.

It is obvious for a person skilled in the art to use, in the seal of D1, the overlapping structure, is already known from D5 or D6.

The content of Claim 4 is not therefore inventive.

In the pile part of the seals, to make the seals male part or female part, is the desing matter, a person skilled in the art decides properly.

It is obvious for a person skilled in the art to decide, in the seal of D1, the number of fixed holes, corresponding to the needs.

The content of Claim 6 and 7 is not therefore inventive.

The device, pushes the seal member toward the cylindrical radius direction center side, is common knowledge so far (See D7 or D8).

It is obvious for a person skilled in the art to use, in the seal of D1, the device, pushes the seal member toward the cylindrical radius direction center side.
